Geneva, Switzerland, 8 June 2012 – Today, a landmark resource for social enterprises, The Governance of Social Enterprises: Managing Your Organization for Success, was launched at the first “ Advancing Good Governance in International Development ” seminar at Oxford University.

Social enterprises address the most pressing problems societies face through employing scalable, self-sustainable and innovative business models. They must balance financial responsibilities and social impact and must coordinate among multiple stakeholder groups including investors, employees, regulators, clients and beneficiaries. To manage these complex trade-offs, social enterprise leaders must rely on strong governance to help safeguard the mission and balance the demands of stakeholders.

The guidebook provides practical tools as well as insights into current practice for social enterprises and their board members to establish and manage their governance. “The positive reception so far of the guidebook, The Governance of Social Enterprises: Managing Your Organization for Success, shows that we have clearly met a need. While there is an increased demand for social sector organizations to adapt better governance practices, there are few resources that give leaders in the social sector the tools and frameworks to accomplish this, ” commented Mirjam Schöning, co-author and Head of the Schwab Foundation for Social Entrepreneurship.

“ Social enterprises limit their potential and undermine their mission when they do not invest appropriate effort into creating a well-functioning board. In short, if applied correctly, a board strengthens, not weakens, the leadership and helps to ensure the success of the social enterprise, ” explained Ann-Kristin Achleitner, co-author and Scientific Director of the Center for Entrepreneurial and Financial Studies (CEFS), Germany.

The guidebook was conceptualized by a group of Schwab Foundation social entrepreneurs with significant experience in setting up and managing boards. “ We wanted to pass on our sometimes painfully acquired knowledge on good governance to fellow social entrepreneurs around the world ” , remarked Andreas Heinecke, Founder of Dialogue Social Enterprise, and convener of the social entrepreneurs task force on governance. “ It is a starting point and we hope that many more tools and resources will build upon it. ”
