

First anniversary sees Global Shapers establish grassroots projects worldwide

22 August 2012

Maxwell Hall, Senior Media Manager: Tel.: +41(0)79 329 3500, E-mail: maxwell.hall@weforum.org

- Global Shapers have established more than 160 city-based hubs worldwide that carry out grassroots initiatives to tackle some of the most pressing problems in their communities
- With 50% of the world's population under the age of 27, the World Economic Forum brings its experience of building multistakeholder communities to create a global platform for this dynamic generation
- Global Shapers are 20 to 30 years of age, with great potential for future leadership roles in all sectors of society. For more information about the Global Shapers community: www.weforum.org/globalshapers

Switzerland, 22 August 2012 – One year after it was launched, the World Economic Forum's community of Global Shapers has grown to actively engage more than 1,200 of the world's most promising leaders under the age of 30 working on grassroots projects that benefit their local communities in more than 160 cities worldwide.

Projects include a national newspaper, radio and TV campaign in Bamako, Mali aimed at inspiring young people to vote; an initiative to address violence and social division among young people in Caracas, Venezuela; a project aimed at closing the education gap in the Philippines by setting up 200 libraries nationwide; a drive to encourage millions of mobile phone subscribers in India into small philanthropic donations with their bill payments; and an earthquake recovery project in the tsunami-hit region of Tohoku, Japan.

The Global Shapers Community was launched in Dalian, China, at the Annual Meeting of the New Champions 2011. The aim is to tap into the potential of the youth generation, providing talented 20- to 30-year-olds with a global platform to shape the future and develop their leadership potential to serve society.

Global Shapers represent all walks of life and share a spirit of entrepreneurship in the global public interest. They include business and social entrepreneurs, academics, musicians, artists and policy-makers. At the time of their selection, they have an entrepreneurial track record having already initiated and delivered a major project or founded a company or organization.

The community is organized into a network of local hubs based in major cities around the world. Shapers undertake activities that generate a positive impact within their local community, while also contributing to dialogues between hubs both regionally and globally. In the last year, more than 200 Shapers have attended World Economic Forum regional meetings to cross-mentor other Forum communities.

“The Global Shapers community is the first truly global youth network that is focussed on improving the state of the world. Recent events have shown the power of young people through technology, information and mobilization to bring change around the world to places where we never even thought change was possible. We see this as an opportunity to bring young people into the World Economic Forum and have them sit at the table with leaders in dialogue to shape the future of this world in a way that reflects the needs of this generation,” said David Aikman, Head of the Global Shapers Community at the World Economic Forum.

More than 160 Global Shapers and Hub Curators from around the world are meeting at the World Economic Forum's offices in Geneva, Switzerland, this week for the first Annual Curators Meeting to discuss the future strategy, vision, governance and long-term goals of the community.

About the Global Shapers:

Notes to Editors

Follow the Global Shapers on Twitter at @globalshapers

Become a fan of the Global Shapers on Facebook at <https://www.facebook.com/GlobalShapers>

For more information about the Global Shapers Community, visit: www.weforum.org/globalshapers and <http://youtu.be/shaAiy2S3fk>

Become a Global Shaper at <https://sites.google.com/a/globalshapers.org/apply/>

Read about the Global Shapers on the Forum Blog at <http://wef.ch/shapersblog>

Upcoming Forum events at <http://wef.ch/events>

Subscribe to Forum news releases at <http://wef.ch/news>

For updates on the activities of the World Economic Forum, subscribe to RSS feed

The World Economic Forum is an international institution committed to improving the state of the world through public-private cooperation in the spirit of global citizenship. It engages with business, political, academic and other leaders of society to shape global, regional and industry agendas.

Incorporated as a not-for-profit foundation in 1971 and headquartered in Geneva, Switzerland, the Forum is independent, impartial and not tied to any interests. It cooperates closely with all leading international organizations (www.weforum.org).

World Economic Forum, 91-93 route de la Capite, CH-1223 Cologny/Geneva
Tel. +41 (0)22 869 1212, Fax +41 (0)22 786 2744, <http://www.weforum.org>